Comments by the Western Press on Moulton's Statement

CHICAGO, August 24—Comments by the Western press on Moulton's statements show no changes in sentiment as regards belief of the guilt or innocence of Beecher. The Times of this city thinks the statement is conclusive evidence of guilt. The Tribune takes substantially the same grounds. The Inter Ocean declares that it contains nothing new and is utterly worthless.

The St. Louis Republic says it simply confirms the almost universal judgment as to Beecher's guilt with many circumstantial and documentary proofs. The Democrat says it leaves little room for doubt.

The Cincinnati Commercial says the correspondence divulged in the statement is intelligible on no hypothesis of Beecher's guilt and cannot be harmonized with a presumption of his innocence without violating common sense.

The steamer Japan will not sail for Hong Kong and Yokohama till Saturday.

The steamer Ohio from Tampico brought 252 passengers 1,950 tons of merchandise and $9,000 in treasure.

The jury in the Lloyd Bell murder case have not yet agreed on a verdict.

A fire broke out to-night in a brick building on Clay street, near Sansome, occupied by Frank Eastman and John B. McIntyre, printers and bookbinders. The flames were soon extinguished. The loss is probably $3,000.

On her way to Monterey the steamer Fidelitér was detained off Presidio several hours on account of some accident to her machinery, but finally put to sea. At Pigeon Point in a dense fog the steamer struck on the rocks, no fog signal being sounded. She struck two or three times but, the engine being reversed, she got off. One of her forward compartments was stove and filled with water. In that condition she proceeded on her voyage and returned in safety to this port.

AUSTIN August 25—This afternoon during a violent thunder storm, Daniel Murphy, carman at the Oregon shaft while wheeling a car out to the end of the dump, was struck by lightning and badly burned on the face and neck. The man was removed in an unconscious condition to his home.

The work of repairing damages caused by the recent flood progresses rapidly. Main street is one succession of dump piles with cars track etc, complete, dumps are formed by the debris in the course of removal from houses and cellars. Recent observations show that the water from the cloud burst of the 15th inst flowed in equal quantities through Marshall and an adjacent canyon. Had the entire volume emptied into Pony canyon in which Austin is situated, the city would have been wiped out of existence.

Weather to-day very threatening and for some hours another cloud burst seemed imminent.

NOTES OF OREGON

Oregon receives the following notices in the commercial columns of the San Francisco Bulletin of Aug. 22d.

The lumber barks between Portland and San Francisco are just now engaged to a considerable extent in carrying fir oak and other fine descriptions of lumber from Portland and Salem for the Palace Hotel, in course of construction in this city.

Attempts have been made this week to organize a Chamber of Commerce at Portland, Oregon. An active body of this kind can do much to give direction character and encouragement to business and we hope those moving in the enterprise will succeed.

It is reported that the Grangers of Oregon will follow the example of the Order in this State and load ships on their own account. Thus far there have been no clearances of new wheat from Portland, but several vessels are understood to be on their way under charter to the Grangers of that State and Portland papers anticipate a lively export trade in wheat in the course of a few weeks.

The Hibernia Savings and Loan Trust Company, Oregon goes into operation under favorable circumstances. As we understand it this is simply a reorganization of the Savings and Loan Society of Portland under a new name and with enlarged resources. The bank was incorporated on the 22d May and the transfer of business has only been effected during the past week. The capital stock is $100,000 which has all been taken by well known business houses. The President is Ellis Lord and H Evelyn Stuart is Manager. There ought to be similar institutions organized at other prominent points in Oregon. Well managed such banks do much to encourage industry and to develop the resources of the State.

UNCLE SAM'S NAGS

HOW THE HORSES ARE PURCHASED FOR THE GOVERNMENT—THE COST OF ANIMALS FOR CAVALRY SERVICE

The noble animal, the horse has been in great demand by the United States government lately, and its agents have been kept busy during the last two months examining, testing and purchasing. From time immemorial the horse has been the pride of warriors and nations, and no country has been as backward in latter days as our own in the quality of its army horses. The cavalry service even under Sheridan, was not worth boasting of, in fact mules were as much in demand in the Shenandoah valley during that famous campaign as horses. Anything, from a dray horse to an Indian pony was used, and as far as appearance went Phil Sheridan had about as ragged a looking army on horseback as Sherman's bummers on foot. But necessity of course was partly the main cause of this. The war trumpets sounded in the country and there was very little infantry and no cavalry worth speaking of to answer the call. Anything that a man could ride had to be selected—or taken—and as the war increased in fury, there was even less taste displayed. Since the war very little improvement has been made in this respect if one can judge from the quality of horses the board are at present purchasing in this city and elsewhere. The

for an army horse after being examined and tested in every conceivable manner is $135. A good horse can be purchased for this sum. You can buy a good one for $60—good for some purposes—but you can't buy a spirited animal such as we've been used to see in battle paintings for three times $135. When the famous Light Brigade

THE NOBLE SIX HUNDRED

charged at the battle of Balaklava, the steeds that bore their noble riders

> Into the jaws of death
> Into the mouth of hell

cost according to an eminent historian over one thousand dollars each. The English cavalry service of the present day is by far superior to that of any other European nations. The dragoon system has in a measure made every soldier a rider so that when called upon he can serve either on foot or on horseback. The Lancers are probably the finest riders in the English service wearing the most expensive uniform and riding the best horses to be found in the United Kingdom. Although they are more for display than for any great fighting qualification they have ever shown yet it is one of the crack regiments of that nation and every young Englander gets Lancer struck once in his life at least. The horses are blooded stock from the best farms, and price is not as much of a consideration as the appearance of the animal and the respectability of his parents and grand parents.

THE PRUSSIAN CAVALRY SERVICE

did some hard fighting in the Franco-Prussian conflict. They maintained throughout that brief but bloody struggle the reputation earned by them in the war with Austria. The fighting, at least the hardest part of it, was done by the cavalry before Metz, Strasburg and Paris. The forced marches they made after crossing the Rhine and the avenues which they cut through the enemies country, cleared the way for the infantry and materially hastened the termination of the war and the defeat of Napoleon and France. On the other hand, the French had a cavalry service that was inferior to that of any other great power in Europe. They depended altogether on their infantry and the defense of the country. An invasion of France when war was declared was considered almost an impossibility, but the Germans mounted on and their cannons and munitions drawn by good horses, were soon placed in the heart of the country, and Metz and Strasburg were surrounded before the French troops could interfere.

Have we a cavalry service in this country, to-day even as good as France had when she declared war against Germany?

THE $135 HORSE,

who looks at our reporter while he (the reporter) is taking notes, will answer you, "Neigh." The horse that has enlisted to kick for his country and for his home, to rear and snort to the tune of Yankee Doodle to charge upon a thousand bayonets without reasoning why, to plunge into the valley of death for the small sum of $135 feels himself that the responsibility of the position is too much for him, and a tear—a strong one—falls from his eye lid as he brushes a fly off his collar bone.

The board at present purchasing horses in this city, consists of Major E B Grimes department quartermaster, Captain S M Whitside of the Sixth cavalry, and Lieutenant F B Jones of the Third Infantry, A A and Q M of the board.

The horses are purchased at Schulerr's stables, on Broadway, where the board meet every morning and approve or disapprove of horses selected by their agent at that place during previous day. From about eight to ten o'clock any morning one can see two or three hundred horses, ready to be sacrificed by their owners for the common welfare of the country. They are generally a very fine lot of horses a few ungainly ones appearing among them. Some are too fat some too thin, some too tall and some too short, and it takes all of such horses to make up the market.

"There" said Mr Johnson a farmer, "there is a horse that I wouldn't part with for anything in the world if he didn't have such an infernal habit of jumping into the corn field. I was offered $150 for him last fall."

"Here Joe" said one of the officers to the darkey who wears himself out trying to run faster than the horses twelve hours every day, for seventy five cents a day and a knowledge of the business, "take this horse and run him. Let's see what he can do."

RUN HIM UP THE HILL

Mr Johnson's horse was run up the hill from the levee the darkey leading all the way to where the officers were standing.

"He blows like blazes" said one.

"He's broken winded" said another.

"Gentlemen" said Mr Johnson, "that very horse hasn't been exercised for six months, that's what's the matter."

"Well we don't want him" said the agent and Johnson moved slowly away.

Another horse is brought forward. His mouth is pulled open and it is found that he is six years old inside the limit five to eight years. He is poked in the ribs and tickled so to speak under his breast bone. He is slapped on the back, kicked in the stomach and generally carressed in this way. Then his hind legs and fore legs are felt and lifted and felt and lifted again the horsemen all looking wise in the meantime. The horse is then handed over to Joe who repeats the operation of running him down to the levee and back up the hill until the beast is almost exhausted and then Joe leads him to the grand stand where he is either accepted or rejected.

THE RULES

which govern such transactions are about as follow. The horse must be between five and eight years of age. A bay is preferred to any other for the reason that horsemen believe a bay horse can stand more hard work than a gray or sorrel. But the horses of the latter colors are taken every day. He must be fifteen hands high well formed and sound in every particular. A good healthy horse will sometimes bring more than $135 but that is almost the regular price. When purchased he is branded U S on the flank and the number of the regiment he is purchased for is branded on one of the hoofs. When all this is done he is kept in the stable until a car load of companions have been purchased when they are shipped to Fort Leavenworth and at that point distributed throughout the west to the different forts. Sometimes as many as thirty horses are purchased in one day and up to the present time about three hundred horses have been purchased at this point. To morrow the board will go up to Kansas city and make purchases there. Five hundred horses are wanted in all for this department and it is the opinion of the board that they will be able to secure that number within a week or two.—St. Louis Globe.

OUR RIVERS AND HARBORS

The subjoined letter from Gen Humphrey Chief of the U S Engineer Corps, which we find in the Jacksonville Sentinel in reply to the letter of Senator Hipple on the subject which has been heretofore published.

WASHINGTON D C August 1 1874.

Hon. J. H. Mitchell U. S. Senate, Washington D C—DEAR SIR. Your letter of the 20th ult was received at this office during my absence at the North.

You call attention to the growing necessity for a more vigorous and liberal policy on the part of the Engineer Department of the Government in reference to improvements in the State of Oregon and the Territories of Washington and Idaho, especially river improvements. You say that the people of that region do not understand why more liberal appropriations were not made for the improvement of their rivers which you explain by stating that as Congress is governed in its appropriations by estimates presented in the reports of this office the blame if any there be must rest here.

Whatever may be the shortcomings of the Engineer Department in this matter, you will find in Senate Ex Doc No 12 of the last session that up to the 30th of June 1873, there had been appropriated and expended on the improvement of the Umpqua, Willamette and Columbia rivers $202,300, whilst the recommendations of this office for those rivers amounted to $372,000. Usually the estimates of the Engineer Department for the amounts which could be most economically and judiciously expended in the annual progress of the works of improvement have been deemed by Congress as largely in excess of what the state of the finances would admit of being expended upon them and at the last session of Congress the estimates submitted by this office for rivers and harbors in general were returned for revision and reduction. In those revised estimates in which great reductions were made the original estimates for the above named rivers were inserted without reduction.

Respecting the Engineer Department recommending the execution of projects of improvement I desire to say that it is obliged to use great delicacy and caution in doing so since Congress in requiring surveys to be made and projects to be prepared from them has likewise in more than one resolution, enjoined the collection of facts and statistics respecting the commerce and navigation to be benefited by the proposed improvement, while it has pointedly omitted to require any expression of opinion on the part of the Engineers as to whether the benefits to commerce and navigation would be commensurate with, or would justify the expenditure of the estimated cost of the works—reserving that question to itself, where such an opinion is in a great measure a professional engineering one then it is expressed by the Engineer Department.

The number of examinations and surveys required to be made by the act of March 3, 1873 was thirty four for which an appropriation of $125,000 was made. This year (act June 23 1874) the number is sixty two and the appropriation therefor is $75,000.

You will perceive how totally inadequate this sum is; but of this small amount $6,800 or one eleventh of it has been allotted to Major Michler his estimate for the survey of the Cascades and Dalles, and for the survey of Snake river having been met in full, but for the other rivers we were unable to give him the sum required for their survey limiting the amount to what was necessary for their examination.

A copy of your letter will, in accordance with your desire be forwarded to Major Michler, at Portland Oregon, and I trust that the action of the Engineer Department will be found to be at least so far in accordance with your views as to afford full information upon the nature, extent and cost of the works of improvement necessary to the development of the resources of the region in question and of the necessity for these works and the advantages to be derived therefrom.

Very respectfully your obd't servant,

A A HUMPHREYS

THE EARLY LIFE OF GOLDSMITH MAID

A WAYWARD CHILD—HOW THE BOYS ON THE FARM FOUND OUT HER REMARKABLE QUALITIES

The Maid was a wayward child. From the date of her birth on the farm of John B Decker in Wantage Township, Sussex county, New York in the spring of 1857 to the age of six years she distinguished herself in many ways but never as a trotter. She was undersized nervous and fretful, and utterly refused heavy farm work. Mr Decker her owner, says he never got any work out of her but twice, one half day in plowing corn, and one half day in drawing stones. Once she was hitched to a harrow but after a short distance she reared backward and entangled both her hind legs in the cross piece of the harrow, and so injured those members that when she goes out for her morning walks it is said she still shows signs of stiffness behind caused by this fall in early life.

From the time she was six months old until Mr Decker sold her she was used as a race horse, though without her owner's knowledge. The boys on the farm, of course as boys do were anxious to know which was the speediest horse and at an early day they found it was the Maid. And so, after the "old man" had gone to bed they would take her out of the pasture or stable whenever a race could be made up and run her on the road after night. She beat everything that could be brought to run with her so that finally none but the uninformed from a distance could be found to bet against her. These races were made up at the country stores and lounging places in the evening after farm work was over and the race run the same night after the "old man had gone to bed." No training no grooms no jockey no weight for age—just a man or a boy in his bare feet mounted bare back with his toes hugging the mare's belly like a leech was the style and the Maid no doubt enjoyed it more than she has some of her late races in the trotting ring.

One day in the summer of 1863 two men were out buying horses for the army and stopped all night at Mr Decker's and in the morning bought the Maid of him for $260 and started for home leaving the mare behind them. On their way they met a Mr Tompkins who knew the little mare and bought her of them for $360. The two men also knew her and believed that she could be made a trotter but were willing to make $100 by their morning's bargain. The next day Tompkins sold her to Alden Goldsmith an excellent judge of horseflesh of Blooming Grove, Orange county N Y for $600. From him she took the name of Goldsmith Maid. He kept her in pretty steady training under a driver named William Bodine to whom more than any other living man should be awarded the credit of first bringing the mare out. The renowned Budd Doble who now drives her so handsomely had not then either seen or heard of her.

While in training for the trotting course she was so fretful and irritable so determined to run away at every opportunity instead of trotting, so hard to bring to trotting after breaking from that gait that Mr Goldsmith many times determined to give up the training and sell her at any price but his patient driver maintained his abiding faith in her and assured his employer that she was the fastest animal on his premises and would come out at last a great trotter and finally persuaded him to keep her, which he did until this driver so brought out her points that Mr Goldsmith in November 1868 sold her to B Jackman and Budd Doble for $20,000. These gentlemen sold her to Mr H N Smith for the sum of $37,000. Mr Doble still drives her. She made her first appearance in public in August 1865.—Evansville Journal.

The iron clad Independenza just constructed in England stuck fast in the ways when half launched and no power under heaven can move her. It will be necessary to take her to pieces. She was insured against the casualties of the launch for £250,000.

OREGON

Salem pedagogues will begin to wield the birch on Monday next.

Washington county Fair will be held at Hillsboro, Sept 28, 29 and 30. $5,000 in premiums are offered.

Indians encamped in the suburbs of Salem got hold of some whisky last Saturday night and had a free fight.

A horse kicked Mr Wm Simpson of the Waldo Hills so badly a few days ago that a doctor had to be called.

Linn county Fair will be held at Albany from the 6th to the 10th of October inclusive. Premium list amounts to $7,000.

Isaac Price of Salem was kicked by a horse at Salem last Sunday and was so badly injured that he was insensible for over an hour.

A man named Dillon of French Prairie is under bonds to appear before the grand jury of Marion county for breaking up a reaping machine belonging to another.

The sum of $1,000 forfeit money is in the hands of the stakeholders on the race to be run on the Union county race course, Sept 1st by "Buckskin" and "Trifle."

Dr Haskell organized a Temperance Band of Hope at Salem last Sunday night, with Mrs J D Boitz as Superintendent, Mrs A Jones Assistant Superintendent, and Mrs Smith Secretary.

T L Bristow Esq, of Salem, has bought the Salem Mercury establishment of Messrs Thompson & Cornell. Mr Bristow being Democratic the paper will probably be so also and excepting his political ideas we wish the publisher success.

A young man named Cooley living near Gervais, was carrying his gun on his shoulder, last week and let it fall. As the gun struck the ground one barrel was discharged, the contents entering Mr Cooley's foot and tearing that useful part of his anatomical structure about half off.

Trout are very abundant in the Blue mountain streams. The Pendleton Tribune says Wilson Bently and Bishop caught 1,500 trout during their short sojourn in the mountains, but Dr Strong of La Grande having caught no less than twenty three hundred, may be considered the champion trout fisher of Oregon.

Along the foothills of the Blue mountains in Umatilla county, the bears trouble sheep raisers a great deal. They seem to have a very strong affection for mutton. They make raids on the sheep corrals in the night, when it is dangerous and foolhardy to try to shoot them, because of the liability only to wound them, and enrage them instead of killing them outright.

The Times, of Union county, says: "It seems to us that a man with money could not invest it better than by erecting a woolen mill in this county. Our water power is ample to supply any number of mills with almost an unlimited amount of machinery. Our facilities for growing wool cannot be excelled in any country, hence we have no delicacy in inviting or trying to induce capitalists to locate with us."

From the Council Bluffs (Iowa) Nonpareil we clip this item: "A drove of 200 ponies and colts from Northeastern Oregon—1,800 miles away—passed through this city yesterday to the Missouri valley and points east. They will be disposed of at best available points. The average cost of ponies and colts in Oregon was about $30. The original drove consisted of some 1,200 head but between disease and Indians, principally the latter—the drove reached this city numerically as stated."

The Statesman of Tuesday says: "Sunday M P Carrigan rode into Gervais on horseback and tying his horse in a convenient place in the street went into the house of a friend where he remained for some time. When ready to go home, he came to where his horse was and it wasn't there. Some one wanted it worse than he did and simply took it—horse bridle and saddle. As it was getting dark he did not attempt a search for the missing animal nor the missing man who took it. The funny part of this story is that yesterday morning a man came into Gervais riding on Mr Carrigan's horse and left it where it was tied Sunday evening. When questioned in relation to the matter, he said he did not intend to steal the horse, but only did it just for fun. Considering that the man has formerly been an inmate of the Oregon Penitentiary, it is a question whether the Justice of the Peace before whom he was brought will look at it in just that light."

OREGON STATE TEMPERANCE UNION

SALEM August 22, 1874.

To all whom it may concern: The third regular session of the Oregon State Temperance Union will be held at the city of Salem on Tuesday, the 15th day of September 1874, at 2 o'clock P M. The following article of the Constitution indicates what Societies are entitled to representation in the Union and how the delegates are to be chosen and accredited.

ART 2. The Union shall be composed of delegates duly elected and accredited from all Temperance Societies, Churches and religious bodies within the State of Oregon which enjoin and enforce the duty of temperance upon their members as a rule of faith and practice. Provided, That no organization shall be entitled to representation in the Union unless it has a total abstinence provision in its Constitution. Provided, further, that each organization represented shall furnish its delegate with proper credentials certified by its chief officer and containing a copy of its total abstinence provision. In addition to the delegates chosen in accordance with the foregoing provision all contributing and life members of the Union in good standing, will be entitled to participate in the proceedings of the coming session.

All temperance societies and other organizations entitled to representation in the Union will have a right to choose 1 delegate for every 20 members in good standing, and for every fraction of 20 over 10. It is earnestly requested that all such societies and organizations send full delegations. Business of utmost importance to the temperance cause in Oregon will be brought before the Union at this session. This meeting was appointed to be held during the session of the Legislative Assembly, the members of the Union desire to do something effective towards securing the enactment of laws to protect the people against the evils of the liquor traffic. They mean business.

The Oregon and California Railroad Co, the Oregon Steamship Co and the Oregon Steam Navigation Co have kindly consented to carry delegates and members to and from the session at reduced rates. Delegates can purchase tickets for the round trip at any ticket office of the O & C R R Co by exhibiting to them certificates of election and paying full fare one way. Those who come on the boats of either of the companies above mentioned and pay full fare will be returned free upon presentation of proper certificates from the presiding officer of the Union. The reduced rates allowed by the O S N Co do not apply to boats plying between Portland and Astoria as those boats are already carrying passengers cheaply enough.

The various newspapers of the State will confer a great favor upon the members of the Union by copying this announcement.

SAM'L C SIMPSON, President.

W. L. DUNBAR Secretary.

A LADY CORRESPONDENT'S OPINION OF ELIZABETH.—Mrs Burnham the free handed lady who writes New York letters to the St Louis Republican is guilty of the following observation: "Theodore gives the world the impression that Mrs Tilton is a beauty but Elizabeth is forty, has had seven children was never handsome, is shapeless, with a dull, ordinary face set between two rows of cork screw curls that give a school marmy air to her. She's just the woman if I was a man that I would go to for a good pattern for a flannel undershirt."

A large temperance meeting was held at Olympia last Sunday evening at which Dr Atkinson and Mrs Thompson, of Portland, made speeches.

One who has seen some of the gold that was brought down to Walla Walla from the new mines in the Columbia river lake country says it is very fine and pure gold. The possessor of the gold was reticent as to the prospects up there and knows or pretends to know a great deal more than he will tell about them.

A Walla Walla paper of last Saturday says: New grain is coming in in small lots but we are sorry to say that the ruling prices are very low—the prices per bushel for oats, barley and wheat, all ranging from thirty to forty cents. This is too low. A horse won't eat 30-cent oats with anything of a relish.

A shower of white toads took place in Larimer county, Colorado one day last week. The Denver News states this as a fact, on the authority of an eye-witness. The shower embraced a strip of country half a mile wide and several miles in length. From a distance the frogs, as they bounced along the ground, looked for all the world like hail-stones. After the storm the little things hopped about over the country in droves of ten thousand.

Charity Grange, July 15th, with 26 members, Wm C Pearson Master, and J H Robinson, Secretary, address Mount Idaho, Nez Perce county I T.

The Walla Walla Union says "The steamer '49' has been secured for the purpose, and a large number of men have left Colville in her for a prospecting tour in the Arrow Lake country situated up the Columbia river from 100 to 200 miles above old Fort Colville. The men are to be dropped along the route at different points, and the steamer will make occasional trips up and down to carry supplies of provisions and to bring the prospectors back to Colville when they wish to return home. It is expected that the country will be thoroughly prospected, and it is confidently hoped that good mines will be discovered, as it has long been believed there were rich mines somewhere in that country. It is the intention of the prospectors to remain in the field as long as the weather continues favorable provided they do not 'strike it' sooner."

There is no longer any doubt that Senator Jones has set his heart on Long Branch as a summer residence. He has purchased from Mr Murphy the large plot of ground fronting the ocean on the other side of Ocean avenue from Mr Murphy's cottage. It is the second plot below President Grant's, Mr DeForrest's being between them. It is one of the handsomest plots on the avenue and cost $30,000. Senator Jones intends to erect a handsome villa on the site and to make it his home next summer.

SUPREME COURT

SEVENTH DAY

A GRANGERS' RAILWAY.—A movement to secure the building of a Grangers' Railway, from East to West is referred to in the following terms by the Chicago Inter-Ocean of the 17th inst: "Yesterday a meeting was held in this city which was composed of Eastern Western and Southern capitalists and in which there was great unanimity in the project. Whether the meeting was composed entirely of Grangers or not cannot be stated, so quiet was the matter kept. There is abundant capital and all the influence necessary, the movers say, to make the scheme a success and no efforts will be spared. It is proposed to make a through double track line from the Atlantic to the Pacific. It is not proposed, however, to construct it all the way but by connections that the projectors know they can get to accomplish their purpose. Whether the Boston scheme has anything to do with this cannot yet be learned, but it is believed that it has. Numerous excursion parties have been visiting Illinois recently and it is given out that the object is to investigate into the feasibility of the matter. The gentlemen now here will remain for several days and will probably hold another meeting today at which a delegation expected from the Pacific coast may be present. It is noticeable that several of the Eastern railroad kings are at Chicago."

PAUPERISM IN NEW YORK

A late number of the New York Herald gives some curious facts about pauperism in that city. The total number of vagrants in the city is stated in round numbers upon what the Herald considers reliable authority, at 5000, of whom not less than 2000 sleep in the streets—that is under steps and doorways, in the public parks and among the docks, warehouses &c. This 2000 embraces both men and women but the proportion of men is greatly in excess of that of women, as, in fact it is in all classes of pauperism. When the frosty nights come and these people can no longer remain in the streets many of them find their way into the workhouses and alms houses at the end of legal proceedings under the laws for the suppression of vagrancy, some—but these are few—obtain private employment and thus provide against the rigors of winter and some are carried away to the paupers burying ground, to end their miseries in a nameless grave. Of the 5000 little more than half are inmates of public institutions.

In winter the number of inmates in the pauper institutions is usually from 10 to 20 per cent greater than in summer. The decrease commences in February and continues till May, when the minimum is reached. In the latter part of August the number begins to swell, and by the close of September there are as many as at any time in the year.

In summer these vagrants subsist almost wholly on fruit, which they pick up about the various stalls. When partially decayed fruit is cast aside, they pick out from it such scraps as are not wholly rotten and make their meal of them. Nearly all enjoy—if they can be said to enjoy anything—the most robust health, and seldom experience a single day's illness. The majority—about two thirds—are abundantly able to work, but will not do so for any consideration. Without aims, ambitions or hopes, they refuse to toil, though the refusal means begging, hunger, nakedness. During the winter their wretchedness is complete but their chosen occupation is vagrancy—strange it is a paradox—and they accept the misery it brings in preference to giving up the business for a life of honest labor. Those who do not belong to this class, those who have been reduced to pauperism by some peculiar misfortune who are not idle and vicious, but are willing to work, do not long remain in the condition of beggars. They soon find work and disappear from the walks of vagrant life.

Inquiry into the nativity of the vagrants has discovered that there is a larger percentage of Irish than of any other nationality. The native-born Americans rank next and then the Germans. And contrary to a very prevalent idea, the Italians have an exceedingly small representation. The percentage of Irish vagrants is about holding its own, while that of Germans is increasing. This fact is accounted for by the increase of immigration from Germany, many of the immigrants arriving at Castle Garden entirely destitute and finding nothing to do by which to earn a livelihood. Most of these gladly take hold of any work that may be offered them and many of them prove to be industrious, frugal and thrifty people.

The facilities for getting to the West and the means now adopted by new communities in the interior of the continent to have the immigrant met immediately upon his debarkation by persons who are acquainted with the country and its institutions and who can speak to him in his native tongue, prevent a great many from falling into pauperism who otherwise would do so. In the great West they are useful, valuable citizens. In New York they would be paupers.

A WATER PROBLEM

The people of Colorado are called upon to meet a problem that has never before came definitely and practically before an American community. The water supply is about exhausted. In that Territory and New Mexico irrigation is indispensable to successful farming, the spring and summer rainfall being less than in any other civilized land. In the winter the snow accumulates to a great depth, and as it melts in the spring the creeks and rivers are all full to overflowing, but as the summer advances and the snow region narrows down, the water supply becomes smaller and smaller, until when the late summer and the fall are reached streams that were immense and irresistible torrents before, have become mere rills or have gone wholly dry, while the main rivers are all but small streams.

By means of lateral canals the water from the streams which generally have great fall is taken out and conducted along the high lands at the sides of the valleys, so that it can be drawn off for purposes of irrigation wherever desired. Each of these canals is intended to supply a large district of farms, and it takes but a few of them to draw off a large stream and distribute its waters upon the arid plains.

As the farming interests of the Territory have extended, the demand for water has increased until this summer when the limit of all the available resources appears to have been reached. Fountain and Monument rivers which rise near the foot of Pike's Peak, and unite just below the town of Colorado Springs flow down to the southeast forty miles to Pueblo, have furnished the supply for the town and for the farms down the valley. But the town has grown to be a place of some population and requires a large amount of water while the farms have increased in number and extent and they likewise demand an increased supply. There is not enough for all and a general struggle is going on over the right to the supply, which means the [illegible]. Denver with its 20,000 inhabitants has still enough, deriving its supply from the South Platte and from Clear creek but it is estimated that an increase of only 10,000 population with a corresponding increase of farms adjacent, would reach the limit of these resources in an average [illegible]. An unusually dry summer [illegible] the present [illegible] duce the supply to the present demand. The town of Greeley with 2500 inhabitants and a large farming country adjoining, is in a still worse situation. It is located on the Cache la Poudre and the agricultural lands are up the valley from the town. The demand for water has increased with greater rapidity in this region, more attention being paid to agriculture. The canals to supply water to the farms up the valley have taken the whole of the stream and the town has been a part of the time wholly cut off from water. A writer says that for some days the town of Greeley was as completely without water as if had been located in the Sahara. All vegetation withered up at once. The shade trees of its five hundred gardens and the green trees in the public park stood with their leaves dry as a tobacco house. Of course this state of things admitted of no delay, and the people of the town sent a delegation to the farmers up the valley to ask a division. At last accounts a truce was agreed upon by the terms of which the town was to have water two days in each week, and a case was to be presented to the court to determine who has the right to the water. A Convention has also been called, in which all interests are to be represented to try to accommodate matters.

That is the sort of a country that is filling up with population while Oregon with a milder climate and no such drawback to her prosperity, still waits for recognition.

THE BENCH ABOVE THE ARENA

The occurrence of a judicial election in Pennsylvania has called forth some discussion of a kind which, unfortunately for the judiciary of the United States has been rather uncommon of late years. In discussing the qualifications of candidates for judicial offices, the question has been pressed whether among the disqualifications on other ground than want of sufficient legal learning, the fact of a candidate's soliciting votes for himself ought not to be numbered. It was insisted that a position on the bench especially in the higher Courts, was such an office as a man should not personally electioneer for, and the Philadelphia Bar Association after due consideration resolved that no man should receive their support who took the field in behalf of himself, whether he made public speeches or privately solicited votes.

The association are right. The judiciary should be above the influences that control popular elections, and this it can not be so long as candidates for the bench can enter the arena of ward and precinct politics with impunity. Let the decision of the Philadelphia Bar Association stand as the decision of the whole country.

A "GOLDEN TEXT."

The Seattle Intelligencer thus tersely states the relationship that should exist between the people and the press:

> Neither the press nor the people can be entirely free until the questions of policy and the characters of prominent men can with equal freedom be discussed. The honest man has nothing to fear from the truth; the rogue only trembles at and denounces the publication of those things which else the masses would fail to learn or suspect.

This is worthy to stand as the "golden text" at the head of the editorial columns of every public journal in the land. It is not inconsistent with honest, dignified party journalism any more than with that which acknowledges no party allegiance. The fact that the received idea of a party organ is that it is a paper devoted to defending the acts of the party leaders right or wrong, and to condemning the course of the opposition without regard to the merits of the question, is evidence simply of that degeneracy of party journalism which has accustomed the public to expect nothing better from partisan papers, and does not argue the necessity for so low a standard.

PLAIN LANGUAGE TO A NEVADA POLITICIAN

The Senatorial contest in Nevada waxes hot as may be inferred from the annexed extracts from an open letter to Wm Sharon a San Francisco capitalist and candidate for Stewart's seat which appears in the Reno Crescent:

> Considering your preparatory education, your pursuits and habits of life it is not to be expected that you fill the measure of this ideal Senator. But since you aspire to so exalted a station it is but reasonable that you should possess some at least of these essential qualities or any of them and in a degree superior to ordinary men. Do you possess these essential qualities or any of them in any degree superior to ordinary men? And are there not many men who excel you both in natural and acquired ability? Is there any quality the result of moral or intellectual fitness which you possess not common to many who are bona fide citizens of our State?

This is tolerably plain talk, but the open letter writer warms up to his work as he proceeds and at length changing from the interrogative to the declaratory form of putting the case talks to Mr Sharon in this style:

> You do not profess to be learned in the science of government; you do not profess to be proficient in the law; you have no experience as a legislator; you are not a scholar; you are not an orator; indeed you do not claim the distinction of an ordinary speaker. What special reason then do you bring forward to support your pretentions? None whatever except that you are rich—that you have acquired and hold vast estates in the mines and railroads of this State. That you are not a citizen; that you are not a statesman; that you are neither a great nor a good man; that you are deficient in the qualities essential to a Senator; that you have nothing to recommend you but your riches ought to be sufficient to silence your aspirations and drive you in disgrace from the field.

Mainly through the activity of this firm the [illegible] practiced by Jayne was brought to light and the repeal of the moiety system that offered a premium on that class of villany was secured. COL GRANT'S ENGAGEMENT.—Charles Algernon Frederick Sartoris' best man Lieut Col Frederick Dent Grant, U S A is contemplating matrimony. In fact he has carried his contemplations to an extent that he has made the proposition to a beautiful young damsel of Chicago and is now in all probability preparing plans and specifications for a bridal outfit that will fairly eclipse his British brother in law. To accomplish his hymeneal predilections Lieut Col Grant has come to Chicago and found in the person of Miss Ida Honore, daughter of H H Honore the one to whom he desires to join his fortunes in peace and war for better for worse. The gossips who know all about those matters say that the young lady reciprocates the preferment shown her by Mr Grant and further state that the affair has so far developed as to set apart the day for the happy event, which will be in the charming month of October. Miss Honore is a sister of Mrs Potter Palmer who was one of the chosen guests at Miss Nellie Grant's wedding, and is furthermore one of the leading young ladies of Chicago society. As to where the nuptials will be performed has not yet transpired but of course Chicago will be the point and it is safe to predict that it will be the most sumptuous affair the city has ever witnessed. Society people will be on the qui vive for particulars and as soon as cards are scattered there will be most extraordinary preparations placed on foot.—Chicago Times.

"OCULIST and OPTICIAN are regarded as synonymous terms by nearly all classes of the community, and Opticians [illegible] fail in their duty if they do not teach the public that an Oculist alone can make a proper and correct examination of the human eye and decide what glass and whether it should be worn by the patient, and the Optician's business should be confined entirely to preparing and setting in a proper frame the glass directed by the former exactly as an Apothecary compounds and puts up the medicine prescribed by the Physician." CITY.

SLAUGHTERED A DEER.—Sheriff Jeffery now enjoys the enviable distinction of having slaughtered a deer. On Monday evening, while Jeff was engaged in milking his cows, a doe hard pressed by the hounds came down full tilt towards his house, situated near the end of B street. The hounds followed fiercely on the track and drove the animal into an enclosure where the fence was too high for it to leap over. Jeff seized his trusty rifle and went for the deer. A number of other persons joined him in the pursuit, prominent among whom was our stalwart guardian of the peace Barney O'Hara. An animated scene followed. Shots were fired in rapid succession, some of which did and some did not take effect. One of the deer's hind legs was broken by a ball from Jeff's rifle, while one of the [illegible] was pierced by a shot [illegible] Barney [illegible]. Seven shots in all were discharged before the doe was made to bite the dust. Jeff and Barney attribute their apparent ill luck and want of marksmanship to a little nervousness occasioned by the excitement of the moment. We suppose we shall have to accept the apology, but if a jail-bird should attempt to escape from either of these gentlemen they would have to draw a finer bead or the result would not be so satisfactory.

HOME-MADE BABY CARRIAGE.—At the assay office of Mr J H Fisk, yesterday we were shown a very handsome new baby carriage. There is nothing very remarkable in this circumstance excepting the fact that it is the first of the kind ever made in Portland and the maker has never served an apprenticeship at the trade. Mr R Heuschuch is the builder of the carriage. He is a practical potter, and of course is not supposed to know much about working in wood and iron. Judging of a workman by his work we should say that Mr Heuschuch was a most ingenious and skillful mechanic. A more elegant and substantially finished carriage we have not seen in any of the stores. Mr Heuschuch made the carriage during his spare moments. He did not even purchase a single article used in its manufacture. Even the springs, bolts [illegible] were made by him with his own hands. [illegible] credit to a first-class mechanic.

PARALYZED.—About two weeks ago, a young woman who resides on Taylor between Third and Fourth streets plying a disreputable vocation was suddenly stricken down with paralysis. She was rendered completely helpless by the shock, not being able to move a hand or foot. As no respectable persons felt at liberty to visit the abode of shame, and she was deprived of the sympathy and attendance of her fallen sisters the young woman was in a great measure abandoned and left to her fate. Persons who saw her inform us that she was a most pitiable object to look at. Yesterday this hapless young woman was placed on a bed and conveyed to the steamer Vancouver, and taken over to Vancouver. She will be placed under the care of the Sisters, who will kindly and carefully minister to the spiritual and temporal interests of the afflicted fallen creature. Her case is regarded as beyond the reach of medical skill.

UNSUCCESSFUL.—Efforts were renewed early yesterday morning to recover the body of Harry Piercey, the unfortunate young man who was drowned on Sunday evening. Most of the day the river was dragged for some distance up and down but to no avail. Further search was abandoned late in the afternoon. The friends of Piercey have concluded to wait until the body becomes distended with gases and acquires a sufficient buoyancy to float, which will be some days yet. The body will doubtless be recovered then.

CONVOCATION.—The Annual Convocation for the Missionary Jurisdiction of Oregon and Washington Territory, will meet in Trinity Church, Portland, on Thursday, August 27th, the first service to be held at half past seven in the evening. The Convocation will continue over the following Sunday. Blanks have been sent to the clergy for their reports, which should be filled out and returned to the Bishop before the meeting of the Convocation.

EXPECTED TO RETURN.—Gen Michler and the large surveying party now engaged at San Juan Island will complete work about the last of the present month and are expected to arrive here. Owing to the great difficulty and danger of landing and also the large quantity of baggage—surveying instruments, camping outfits etc.—belonging to the several parties it is very likely [illegible] will doubtless be chartered to carry everything to Tacoma.

COURT MARTIAL.—An adjourned meeting of the Court Martial ordered to convene to investigate the alleged embezzlement of government funds by Major U S Eggleston will be held on the 5th of September. Gen Nelson H Davis who was a passenger on the incoming steamer will be a principal witness in the case. We are informed that the examination will be made public.

COURTS.—The U S Circuit Court met on Monday morning and without transacting any business of importance, adjourned until next Monday. The U S District Court met yesterday morning and adjourned until next Saturday. On the 14th of September a special term of the Circuit Court Judge Shattuck presiding will be held in this county.

EXAMINED AND ACCEPTED.—Last week the breakwater constructed across Percey's Slough by the Government this summer was examined by a competent engineer and accepted. Whether or not the breakwater will answer the purpose of its construction remains to be seen. Another winter's freshet will test the permanency of the structure.

BOARD OF TRADE.—There will be a meeting of the Board of Trade this (Wednesday) evening at Ankeny's Hall, at 7:30 o'clock. The principal object of the meeting is to instruct the members of the several standing committees. A full attendance is earnestly desired.

SPIRITUALIST CAMP MEETING.—We are requested to state that a Spiritual camp meeting will be held on Lewis River Washington Territory, commencing on the 5th inst and continuing ten days. A cordial invitation is extended the public.

IN PROBATE.—Yesterday Judge Woodward made the following order in vacation. In the matter of the estate of Charles Reinig ordered that [illegible] Levi Anderson and J S Keller [illegible] appointed appraisers of said estate.

FALSE ALARM.—Last evening a few minutes after [illegible] o'clock an alarm of fire was sounded. [illegible] the Department [illegible] there was no need of the services [illegible] proved a false alarm.

OUT-DOOR SPORTS.

To-morrow morning the Arcadian Base Ball Club will leave for Astoria, where they will play the club of that place shortly after their arrival. On Friday they go to Cape Disappointment to meet and play the Fort Stevens club in the morning and the Observatory club in the afternoon, and on Saturday return games will be played by the same clubs. On Monday the Arcadians play the return game with the Astoria club, returning to this city on Tuesday. The nine selected consists of the following players: Matthews, [illegible], Hunt, [illegible], Al Raleigh, McCracken, Yates, Burk and Glenn (the new acquisition). The boys will be accompanied by several friends and have made arrangements to have full reports of the games and incidents of the trip. The people at the mouth of the Columbia may expect to see some capital playing during the stay of the Arcadians.

No boats are ascending the upper Willamette higher than Wheatland.

The yellowish hue the maple leaves are assuming betokens the near approach of fall.

The big sunflower now nods and bends gracefully in the breeze—when there is any stirring.

The steamer left San Francisco on Saturday, not Sunday, as mentioned in Monday's OREGONIAN.

Water and muskmelons, fruits of all kinds and vegetables beyond computation can be had in all the markets.

A number of workmen are engaged in sawing off the piles of Flanders new wharf extension and capping the same.

The foundations of Monastes' new buildings are level with the sidewalk, and the work promises to have a speedy termination.

We have been spared the annual smallpox scare this summer, and also have enjoyed an immunity from the presence of the loathsome scourge.

S. G. Reed and Frank Dekum's brick building on North Front street presents a magnificent appearance. There are no finer buildings in Portland.

Slightly mixed is the following which we clip from the San Francisco Bulletin [illegible] Evening dispatches: "The printer who set it up was thinking of the Beecher-Tilton scandal. It means the evening's dispatches."

Instead of "That's the kind of a man I am," "You hear me," "What's the size of it," and similar expressions to give tone to some preceding remark, it is now the style to end an important declaration with "That's me that's coughing."

Either the local man of the evening contemporary is certainly perversely obtuse or is disposed to take everything literally. At least one would think so from his allusions to two items which appeared in these columns. We were merely fooling a neighbor.

Old Paddy Paddyrish, was found tranquilly "snoozing" on the sidewalk last evening and escorted to jail between two P. M.'s. Paddy is an old timer, and the sight of his classic lineaments brings joy unutterable to the breast of the average policeman.

The mortal remains of the late Charles H. Botford, who departed this life on Saturday evening, were followed to their last resting place in Lone Fir Cemetery yesterday by a large number of friends. Funeral services took place from the First Presbyterian Church.

Crime is very noticeably increasing since work has been discontinued at the various fisheries down the Columbia. A numerous and very reckless element are thus left without any employment, and suffered to drift about. The near approach of fall, together with the State and county Fairs, will have a decided tendency to attract to this city a large number of bad characters, so that we shall confidently expect to see a marked augmentation of crime and criminals.

THE STAGE.

We hear some rumors that Mr Chas Wheatleigh, now in San Francisco, proposes to bring up a large troupe and open a brief season this fall.

Nothing has been heard of the Coleman Sisters, who in company with a small troupe were playing some weeks ago at Chico, with the intention of coming overland to Oregon.

Last evening Madame Bishop and Company appeared at Vancouver to a full house. They will arrive here to-day. Next Tuesday evening Madame Bishop will be the recipient of a farewell benefit at the hands of this public.

Mr R Fulford went to Salem yesterday to make arrangements about leasing a hall there during Fair week. Madame Phelps, we understand, has engaged the Opera House during the Fair, so we presume there will be no dearth of amusements during its continuance.

The Call of a late date says: Con T Murphy, at present interlocutor and what is technically known as "straight man" in the Emerson Minstrel Company, will resume the regular dramatic business in the company that succeeds The Black Crook at Maguire's New Theatre.

Present indications would seem to forbid the idea that a circus company will visit the State this fall. There was some talk about Montgomery Queen's mammoth combination—Circus and Menagerie—coming to Oregon this fall, but on account of the great distance, magnitude of the company, and the heavy expenses attached to its movements, it is more than probable that the original intention will be abandoned.

THE COURTS.

U. S. DISTRICT COURT—[illegible] J.

TUESDAY, August 25 1874.

Frederick A. Wendt, a native of Prussia, admitted to citizenship.

David Goodsell was on motion admitted to the bar.

In re C. B. Comstock et al, claim of Bank of British Columbia, cause placed on docket and set for hearing on Saturday next.

Ordered that 24 persons be drawn and summoned to appear in the Court on Tuesday September 8 1874, to serve as petit jurors.

Adjourned until Saturday next.

AN AMERICAN GOLCONDA.

THE DIAMOND WORTH $25,000,000 THAT WAS FOUND IN NORTHERN GEORGIA—THE GEMS THAT SPARKLE IN THE GOLD DIGGINGS.

According to Dr M F Stephenson of Atlanta, Ga., who has published a little volume on the geology and mineralogy of that State, its mineral wealth is yet only partially developed, and not to be compared with its future in the production of jewels, particularly diamonds. In the great belt of its plutonic and metamorphic formation, extending in a diagonal line through middle Georgia to the line of its limestone formation in Northwestern Georgia, are found five distinct outcroppings of itacolumite or elastic sandstone, the matrix of the diamond. In each of these ledges diamonds of greater or less value, according to Dr Stephenson, have been found.

The most extensive of these ledges is in Hall county, in Upper Northern Georgia, in a belt about thirty miles wide running diagonally northeast and southwest about seventy miles. In every gold deposit or branch mine that has been worked in Hall county, splendid diamonds have been found by the gold washers, who, being ignorant of their value, have lost or thrown them away. A few of them have been sent to Europe to be cut and set, but most of them have been lost. None were picked up except those without incrustation, and it is well known in Brazil that only one tenth of the diamonds there are without incrustation. In washing for gold all the large diamonds would necessarily be lost on account of the construction of the machines, or thrown away with the quartz gravel. Only such as passed into the riffles with the grains of gold and fine sand were found in the cleanings after the day's work was finished. All those picked up in Hall county were found in this manner. Most of them weighed from two to six carats.

Three very large ones were found. The first was broken in pieces by the ignorant miners to see why it was so lustrous. The second was used by the boys of Gainesville for a long time as a middle man in playing marbles. But the largest by far, as large as a guinea egg, and partly incrusted, was lost soon after it was found by Dr Loyd, the overseer of the Glade Gold Mine, [illegible] about twelve miles northeast of Gainesville. This was ten or twelve years before the war.

In the four years of Dr Loyd's overseership of the gold mine he (Dr Loyd) picked out of the sands of the pannings every night after the day's washings about a half a pint of pretty shining stones, which he gave to his wife. Some of these the children took a fancy to for playthings, and they of course were lost. Of course the children took a fancy to the largest and most brilliant. Those which they rejected Mrs Loyd put into an empty mustard bottle, and when the bottle was full she made a little bag and put in all that her husband brought home as a store of future playthings for her children. From the description of these it is inferred one of them must have been worth from $20,000 to $30,000 apiece.

The large one Dr Loyd found not among the pannings, but while working himself in the mine in the place of a sick hand. While raising gravel he found a stone just like the little one, except that it was bright and luminous on one side, the other side being covered with a crust brown. It was about the size of a guinea egg. As he was obliged to work very hard to keep the wheelbarrows filled with gravel for the rifflers, he laid his pretty stone on the bank of the stream hard by, at the root of a large gum tree. But at nightfall he was very tired and forgot the pretty stone.

Twelve years after that he was shown a rough diamond, and was instantly struck with its resemblance to the contents of the mustard bottle, and it struck him at once that the stones were diamonds. He was at that time keeping a hotel in Atlanta. His wife was dead, and his daughter was married and removed to Northwestern Georgia, taking from Hall county all the furniture they had during their stay at the mines, and with it an old cupboard in which the bag of diamonds had been carelessly thrown. Dr Loyd, convinced of the value of the stones, at once went to visit his daughter, but she had no remembrance of the bag or mustard bottle.

Bent with disappointment the wearied old man turned his footsteps to the site of the old Glade Gold Mine. The ground was under cultivation, and where the forest and the old gum tree formerly stood was a field of waving corn. He found the old heaps of gravel, and for weeks and months sifted the sands and grit and sought diligently for the lost diamond. But all in vain. At last, wearied and disheartened, he gave up the bootless search and returned to Atlanta to die.

Dr Stephenson says there is not a doubt that this stone was a diamond, and if pure and of the size of a guinea egg, as stated, it was worth at least $25,000,000. According to Dr Stephenson it is established beyond question that diamonds of great value have been found in Hall county, and that it requires only a judicious outlay of capital and labor to develop diamond beds in that county, and perhaps in other parts of the State as rich as the diamond fields of Brazil or South Africa.

BEECHER'S HUMOR.

HENRY WARD B. AT THE END OF HIS FIVE AND A HALF HOURS ON THE WITNESS STAND—HIS OPINION OF EMINENT AMERICAN PATRIOTS.

[From the N. Y. Tribune, Aug 11th.]

Mr Beecher, it is said, spoke with dignity and perfect calmness of manner, and replied to the questioning frankly and with no hesitation. No time was lost. The questions of the Committee were put thick and fast, and the answers were equally ready. This was continued until [illegible] minutes after [illegible] o'clock, and after congratulations were given Mr Beecher, all the Committee made their appearance at the outer door. Whatever the verdict of the people was to be, there was no mistaking the sentiments of the Committee. For some days they had been burdened by their vain attempts at secrecy and had shown themselves to be wearied with their work and troubled by the severe criticism which their delay had occasioned. But the agony was now over with them, and mingling their jokes and laughter they stood a few moments in the doorway talking with Mr Beecher, and then hastened away with cheerful faces.

Mr Beecher stepped outside the door and stood for some minutes upon the steps speaking with his friends and others who caught at his words like diamonds. To impertinent questions relating to the scandal he appropriately responded by pronouncing George Washington the greatest man of his time, Abraham Lincoln a very exalted character, and Jupiter a man of might. Then he wondered what effect the present controversy would have upon his chances for the Presidency, and told of a time when he was lecturing somewhere in the West, where an anxious local politician with an eye to his trade wanted to know what Beecher was after and if he had any political scheme on hand. He thought that this affair must have given him notoriety enough to make him eligible for the Presidency. He was curious to know by what means the newspapers got so much regarding the very private meeting of the Committee the previous evening, at this hour, and expressed his conviction that if the Darwinian theory of development were correct, reporters would some time become corkscrews able to draw the stopples out of every bottle and find out its contents. He commended the study of character to one of the questioners as a very good mental exercise. Mr Beecher was in fine spirits, and however he may have appeared during the past month, seemed to have been relieved of [illegible] trial. The excitement of his cross-examination had left his face almost free [illegible], and he looked to be somewhat wearied. In the [illegible] his conversation [illegible] by the excitement through which he had been passing. The singular [illegible] that was put to him by one of his listeners [illegible] how he was feeling seemed hardly necessary, and was met with the quick reply that he had just bought him a new white vest and was feeling very proud, which [illegible]. After five minutes or thereabouts of conversation he bade his auditors good evening and went in [illegible].

WAS MURDER [illegible] NATHAN.—A [illegible] who is known to the keepers of the [illegible] as No 4,060, and to the world as William Forrester, has written a long letter to the New York [illegible] charging that [illegible] made a shield to protect the parties guilty of the Nathan murder. This is no new story, but it contains some fresh details and is very earnestly and strikingly put. He [illegible] Superintendent [illegible] knew the guilty [illegible] the weight of his secret [illegible] twenty [illegible] prehension out of a fund of $30,000 that had been placed at his disposal. Who then committed the murder? People may say that they are weary of the subject, but if another hapless old man were murdered in his bed to-night they would point again to the Nathan murder and inquire why the detectives were at fault and why they failed to follow up the information given and offered. It is true that the Illinois convict is a thief, but he certainly tells some truths and marshals his facts with ability. If he could be made to reveal all that he knows light might be thrown upon New York's darkest and most fearsome tragedy. It is not too late to take up and follow the clues offered by this convict. Every citizen would sleep easier at night could the Nathan murder be avenged.—N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

MARY POMEROY'S FUNERAL.—The funeral of Mary Pomeroy, the alleged victim of Levi [illegible] Glendenning, took place yesterday and was numerously attended. Just before the body was removed from the house the motherless babe was christened by Rev Mr Lemon of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Ella Stewart Glendenning.

NEVER ALLOW DIARRHEA, DYSENTERY, or any Bowel Affection to have its own way, as serious consequences may result. By neglecting such complaints the system is often rapidly reduced to a condition [illegible] the help of medicines before the patient can realize the necessity of looking about him for a remedy. At this season of the year especially everybody should be provided with that certain and safe curative for all Stomach and Bowel Complaints, Dr. Jayne's Carminative Balsam, for with this remedy at hand all such affections may be promptly and efficaciously treated.

Mischief in the Air.

We cannot analyze the aerial poisons that produce epidemic and endemic diseases, but the valuable discoveries which have been made in vegetable pharmacy enable us to counteract their malific influence. The most powerful known antidote to every species of malaria is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a pure botanical medicine, in which the finest antiseptic tonics, alteratives and stimulants of the vegetable kingdom are skillfully and effectively combined. At seasons of the year when the atmosphere is surcharged with malaria, and when [illegible] specific virus of any infectious disease is supposed to be present in the air, this famous corrective should be taken regularly as a protective. All who thus [illegible] this precaution may bid defiance to intermittent and remittent fever, and in fact to all disorders generated by foul exhalations or impure water.

CULTURE AS A POET

[illegible] ON CHARACTER [illegible] THE MEMBER FOR ESSEX

JOHN CALVIN

When angry zealots brand of Calvin's fame
Or blast his memory with reproaches dire
Let truth and justice speak—and they conspire
To praise to bless to canonize his name!
Say they he clothes in too austere a guise
The sacred doctrine of the Christian page
Say that he shares the spirit of his age
Who stands unmoved while poor Servetus dies
[illegible] these forbid us to revere
[illegible] brightest day star of the blessed hour
When Europe waking from her night of fear
Shook off the incubus of Papal power?
Helvetia Holland Britain answer No
And from our own broad land the like response
[illegible]

WILLIAM PENN

Fearless of scorn of bonds of martyrdom
The teacher Penn to priests and tyrants tells Truths Heaven derived or drawn from deepest wells
Of thought and conscience such as never came [illegible] mere bookman seeking wealth or fame
And if with them grave errors mingled be,
True love to man transparent piety,
For much of error may indulgence claim
On mercy's errand to the Western wild
The statesman comes and neath the Treaty Tree
Taming the savage by his accents mild
[illegible] a fair home for Love and Liberty
With Justice Peace its sole protecting bands
Oh [illegible] Alone this builder stands!

Democratic Review for October 1841

WAITING FOR HIS JUGULAR

I [illegible] leaving Hohenfels said to his young acquaintance Von Ramm One thing is necessary to complete our joy in Heidelberg. How can we see a good duel? "

"How? Oh anyhow " answered the Baron of the Golden Shower

"But when will a duel take place, if you please?

"When? Oh any day "

"Duelists are accommodating to tourists." With this remark Hohenfels relinquished a subject which he thought his friend seemed to surround with a certain obscurity Conversing afterwards among the students however, he learned that a duel was really to happen in two days, and that Von Ramm was to be the hero Hence his reticence "It is with young Fox from the University of Bonn, a foreigner There will be several other matches but they will be simply trials of skill Fritz has the only affair of moment—good luck to him! The other man insulted our college "

On the eventful morning I went with Hohenfels to the seat of war Some botanical specimens on the route attracted me and the Baron, best natured of men conspired with [illegible] my myrtle-chasing When we arrived the friendly matches were all over and the serious affair between Von Ramm and the foreigner was under engagement The latter, whose back was toward me, smoked a pipe that only German [illegible] in length and model, and he was lost in a pair of burlesque cavalry gloves from some [illegible] his horseman's boots surprised me, for they were made of alligator's skin, and looked just fit to contain a bowie-knife or so, his pantaloons too were unlike anything [illegible] for they were of a fine pin-stripe jean, more familiar to the Mississippi than the Rhine Except for a cuirass or fencing mask he was unprotected His adversary however without it was difficult to recognize was stuffed out into a state of defence that made him appear gigantic The student duels on the Rhine are literally a pillow fight This combatant had a mattrass on his breast wadding on his arms, and cushions on his legs, for it is with wool pulled over his eyes, and, I doubt not cotton in his ears, that the Rengowner achieves his fame. A fine meerschaum issued from Von Ramm's wire woven visor, like a lily from a flower basket A sufficiency of seconds and students, their tinsel locks lying on their shoulders like epaulettes, stood solemnly around and contemplated battle's magnificently stern array These assistants are often so completely encased in leather and pads that they could be blown up with gunpowder without much injury It is their duty to stand by with a sword intercept any unfair strokes and stop the fight if their principal is wounded The scars of a College duelist are generally seen on his left cheek. And I understood this fact when I observed the play of Von Ramm, who seemed to be continually trying to cut over the guard of his opponent's sword arm He was an expert and graceful fencer, a hundred times lighter in all his stuffings than his unencumbered foe The latter played very singularly, he kept entirely on his defense, with little or no exhibition of swordmanship, until the spectators became tired of the monotony of his game. All were looking with interest at the expert motion of the brilliant Lathunian, when finally just as his second stepped out to announce that the fifteen minutes were up the alligator boots sprang forward, lunged at his neck and delivered the point so strongly that the opposing sword only succeeded in beating it down a little toward the shoulder Von Ramm staggered into the arms of his friends where he bled quite profusely from a scrape over his collar bone seeing him so unexpectedly hurt Hohenfels ran to his side I prepared to re-enter our cab, very much disturbed and sickened when the victor who was examining the reddened point of his sword in an attitude of impartial interest said, in a nasal inflection of my own language, "Guess I've euchred him with my little snickersnee" The clumsy conqueror in alligator boots was then an American I have never known a nation at victory to give me so little satisfaction With a feeling of shame and self-condemnation I returned alone to the hotel.

As I entered the public room in the evening a newcomer to my great surprise nodded without however betraying the least intention of disturbing his hat which was a small wide awake set rather back from the forehead

"I saw you at the little unpleasantness this explanation he kindly added to his salute He proceeded "It is difficult to recognize folks through a wire basket but my memory for faces is good, I am something of an artist "

The nasal accent revealed the man with alligator's legs One of those sanguinary brutes of the battle-field was doing me the honor to claim me for an acquaintance His present appearance, at least was pacific, he had come out of his alligator skin He was drinking coffee out of a larger cup than is usual for that beverage at a European dinner, out of a size familiar on most breakfast tables in the United States

"You are noticing my cup I carry it around They make this cup at Dresden very largely for the American trade I am something of an importer I cannot enjoy my coffee out of one of these poppycock thimbles they give you at a table d'hote, and I must have my coffee just so I am something of an epicure

I judged it necessary to say a word to Berkley who had just come up "This gentleman who appears to be my compatriot, has just pinked his man in an affair with a person I have met before—a musical pilgrim at Achern in fact, who joked with me on botanical subjects in the character of a student of pharmacy

"No more of a pharmacy student than my cane, I'm something of an apothecary He said four Western colleges were only primary schools which it was a State disgrace to characterize as universities He totally denied the merit of Ann Arbor asserting that he had never heard of it. A college where they pick up a new asteroid every fine night! I've been at Ann Arbor I'm something of an astronomer I never fought before but on that I asked him out for a walk, and I just waited for his jugular

"You showed great coolness certainly I said in a kinder tone, I found something chivalresque in this young stranger who had never fought a duel coolly engaging an old hand in defense of his country's education [illegible]

"Yes I am probably cool I simply waited for his jugular I had to wait for nearly all the quarter of an hour but then he gave it to me You see gentlemen, for a raw swordsman to engage an older one is an interesting, not to say a difficult problem in the correlation of forces My plan which has succeeded was to go through the fight without trying to make any thrusts and confine my attention to parrying I thus got an advantage of fifty per cent over my man, whose intellect was divided between the two schemes of parry and thrust The watchfulness demanded in this exercise is simply the equal allotment of nervous power through the nerve-branches of the whole body and limbs this is harder than what is called presence of mind, which is only the concentration of force in a single organ, the brain Thus having put my eyes, as it were, all over my arms and legs I felt perfectly calm and sure he couldn't touch me I had decided beforehand on this game and to uncover my sally ports only at the last. I was kept aware of the exact passage of time by my second who made a signal at [illegible] four minutes [illegible] was the fellow who rigged me out, some of them' all [illegible] from Munich After the third four minutes [illegible] my adversary was tired and unprepared I cut just as his second was stepping forward to stop the fight I had luck and I reached his jugular or near it'

And calmly attentive to us he poured down a draught of coffee

"My order of sensations he exclaimed musingly, was not dissimilar to what I have experienced at the Stock Exchange There, too, we are obliged to combine ideas with rapidity, to be on continual guard and to be ready with the nerve force I am something of a speculator

I looked anew at this surprising unsurpassable American I made sure that he was from the West! His proportions were not quite harmonious his legs were long and lean but his trunk hat and head were squat His nose was fat his lips large his hair pale and bushy There was something of the albino in his appearance

As he sauntered out picking his teeth I called the man of all work The old fellow came up, decorated with his trousseau of keys I asked him familiarly if he knew my young countryman "Is there anything peculiar about the habits or luggage of this Yankee?"

"Faith sir he took a little corner room in the garret among the maids and kellners He travels with nothing but a French horn and a small bag!"

Wheat in Liverpool by mail advices from San Francisco 10s 9d@11s for average California and 11s 2d@11s 4d for club

We have met with nothing of noteworthy importance in local monetary circles to day Business of nearly all kinds has been dull so far during the week and it is now thought will so continue for about a fortnight, at which time it will be seen whether the present lock between the producers and shippers is on account of an indisposition on the part of the former to sell or the latter to buy at current rates The reason now assigned by leading men of both classes is the lateness of the harvest This ought to satisfy all minds, but still there are those who insist that the Grangers will not sell unless they can get $1 a bushel but these we believe do not understand the matter fully

Of course, in the dullness of trade there is no unusual demand for money, and while the supply of available funds is fairly adequate, there are but few loans comparatively being effected at present.

That the country at large is not in a bad condition is demonstrated by the latest monthly report of the Bureau of Statistics, which brings the figures of our commerce up to the 1st of May For the ten months ending April 30th the imports for the whole country merchandise and specie amounted to $495,204,376 against $[illegible] for the corresponding period of the previous fiscal year, a reduction of $61 263 [illegible], but there has been a reduction in the consumption of imported goods of about $100 000 000 during these ten months compared with the same period of the preceding fiscal year, The export movement for the ten months ending April 30th merchandise and specie, amounted to $587 663 568 against $507 [illegible] for the relative period of the preceding fiscal year We have exported $29,294,850 less specie than during the ten months of the previous year yet we have shipped $50 295 471 more of produce and merchandise, making a net increase in the exports of specie and goods combined of $10 000 612. This is upon the whole an encouraging exhibit, inasmuch as it indicates the existence of an economic spirit among the people

The Mark Lane Express of August 12th says We are now in the middle of harvest and the new wheat crop shows nothing to indicate more than an average quality and growth Some fields show premature ripening Some of our contemporaries say the crop will not be above an average—others say one third above an average while some think it will be below an average An immense amount of wheat is yet unharvested and an increase of rain would be a serious disaster There is much diversity of opinion about the crops in France and Belgium In closing its review of the market the Express says We do not see how the prices of wheat can be much depressed

The following report is compiled from the latest circulars at hand from continental Europe

The crop of Hungary is the best since 1867 Wheat has furnished a good average crop and of very fine quality Rye gives an average yield of good quality Barley, a full average yield of a quality which has suffered by drouth Oats an average crop with lighter grain The yield in the Teiss region and the Baccs does not as regards quantity realize expectations The aggregate results in Austria is about an average crop

In Russia average rye and wheat crops are looked for and especially in districts near the Austrian frontier the promises are brilliant in Roumania, and in Servia the people are satisfied with the result of the crops and in Montenegro the crop is about an average one while in Little Wallachia the result has been impaired about one third by hot winds Notwithstanding this drawback Roumania has as much grain left for export as in any year since 1867

The wheat crop of France is lauded and there is enough left for export. Rye barley and oats have yielded comparatively little

In Algeria the crop is excellent In Southern Germany crops are good both in quantity and quality and probably wheat will be fair while in the Palatinate and Lower Bavaria barley has done very well It has done but fairly in Upper Bavaria and Swabia, and done very poorly in Franconia The wheat crop in North Germany will be about 90 per cent. of the average crop but rye barley and oats are equally deficient. The requirements of home consumption are nearly covered Switzerland will require from abroad more than in former years though there are large supplies of old stock still in store. In Italy the harvest has been excellent in quality and quantity so much so that there are already in foreign markets many sellers from Italy Belgium and Holland have both a fair wheat crop but of rye there is barely an average crop this season The result has been such that, with the exception of England and Switzerland no country will be short of the quantity needed for its own consumption.

European Grain Markets and Crops.

In the London Times of July 19th a writer upon the question of the breadstuff supply says that there is no home-grown wheat left in England and that nearly all of the granaries of the world have been swept clean—meaning we suppose European granaries There is therefore no old stock to add to the home aggregate of the present year With all that has been imported Europeans have eaten up their bread very close Nothing is left to go over The same writer estimates the wheat crop of the present year as follows

In quantity quality and weight wheat is unquestionably the crop of the season not only in this country but in all others. The area too of the United Kingdom is undoubtedly excessive reaching probably 4 000 000 acres and if this affords as I estimate it will an average of 32 bushels an acre, the produce will be 16 000 000 quarters or within 6 000 000 quarters of our old estimated consumption This is less than half the foreign importation of 18[illegible] and than what is likely to be found to be that of 18[illegible]

The same writer however showed that the supply of stock food this year would not be much more than half the usual amount At that date farmers were in some districts buying straw and oil cake to feed their cattle It is an interesting fact that the only two forage crops which were turning out well were saintfoin and lucerne When stock food is short the draft on course bread stuffs is much greater

Taking the more recent accounts which have come to hand by telegraph says a San Francisco paper we reach the conclusion that the wheat harvest in amount, is somewhat above the average in the United Kingdom But putting two other facts together viz that only about half the usual amount of stock feed has been produced which will tell decidedly on the beef market and that the granaries clear of the old stock of wheat are all over Europe—the demand for foreign wheat to supply the English market must still be large. It is not likely that later accounts will change the present prospect very much Unfavorable weather during the harvest season would of course make a difference and a greater one would be made by the breaking out of a European war

Shipping Intelligence.

Home Produce Market

WHEAT—We have but little new to note in this cereal very little comparatively of the new crop having yet changed hands in this market nor as yet has much been stored here Offers are not apparently numerous though doubtless dull exporters' figures suit producers we would see wheat enough We expect in Wheat to the present condition [illegible] a fortnight Quotations at present are $1 40 [illegible] per cental

FLOUR—The stocks are small but owing to a diminished demand for shipping, caused by the incoming of the product of the new wheat in California the requirements of the trade here are easily met. A good article of extra is in fair supply jobbing at $5@5 25 ⅌ bbl but a few brands of standard qualities are held at $5 50 Common country make is in the market in fair quantities for the season at $4 [illegible] fine to superfine quotable at $4 [illegible] 4 50

OATS—The market is inactive in this cereal and receipts are falling off, the shipping demand being rather duller The quotations furnished are 70@80c ⅌ bushel The new crop is everywhere reported as yielding well and prices are more likely to decrease than advance The local demand is well supplied from the stocks on hand and current receipts

BARLEY—But very few transactions are noted and these mostly to supply the local demand for brewing Best lots are worth $1 40@1 50 ⅌ cental including kegs Inferior $1 37½@1 40 for feed

FEED—The stocks on hand here are quite small compared with former periods in the season but are still adequate to the current demand which is almost entirely local and as always light at this time in the summer Sales are slow at the current rates which are $1 [illegible] ⅌ ton for bran shorts $17@18 chopped middlings etc $30

HAY—There is a great abundance of the new crop of timothy offering at $10@11 ⅌ ton baled or $8 [illegible] for loose from wagons The demand except for local consumption is very dull

POTATOES—There is no lack either in quantity or variety of the new crop now coming to hand Prices range from 37½@40c ⅌ bushel

ONIONS—Choice yellow of the new crop command 2 cents ⅌ lb but common lots are quotable at 1½ cents The receipts are limited

BACON—The demand for good side meats is still brisk and the supply rather short at 11@14c ⅌ lb hams and shoulders are in better supply but meet with ready sale We quote shoulders 9@10c hams 15@16 cents

DRIED FRUIT—The demand for apples is somewhat duller and prices have slightly declined We quote choice 5½c in kegs 6½ ⅌ bushel Plums with pits, dull at 6c pitless 13@14c

LARD—A fair article is in good demand at 14c ⅌ lb, either in kegs or tins

EGGS—The demand is quite brisk and with light receipts prices have advanced to 30 cents per dozen

BUTTER—The market is fairly supplied and prices for such as is commonly shipped range from 18@25c ⅌ lb The best brought to market is used in the local trade and when not delivered on contract is quotable at 25@30c.

CHEESE—The trade is quiet and the demand well supplied at our former quotations

CHICKENS—The receipts of the past five days have been larger and prices are a little weaker choice lots of grown selling at $1 and spring at $2 [illegible] ⅌ dozen Ducks tame $5@6

FRESH MEAT—We quote choice young steers on foot at 4@6c ⅌ lb common lots 4@5c Most of the arrivals now are in excellent condition. Mutton sheep per head quotable at $2 25@2 75 Dressed hogs nominal at 6@7c Demand not active

HIDES—Choice dry quotable at 15@16c ⅌ lb green 6@7c culls 11@11½c The shipments and receipts are large

WOOL—There are no transactions worthy of note now occurring though occasionally a remnant of the spring clip reaches the market, and if of prime quality and in good condition sells readily at current rates which are 26@28 cents

General Merchandise.

PAINTS—We quote market in jobbing lots for Averill's chemical ⅌ gal $2 75 Atlantic 13½@14 Bartlett 11@12 North River 11 Greenback 10 Wm Brown & Sons 13 French Zinc, white 16 Devoe's Zinc white 12 Lampblack Eddy's 50@60 Germantown 4@6 ordinary 25 Venetian red 6@8 Havre Ocre, [illegible] Red lead 12½@13 Litharge 13@14 fire proof [illegible] 6 cents

A ROMANCE OF HOLLAND HOUSE

Some thirty years ago or thereabouts a bright clever girl was among the inmates of Holland House She was then known as Miss Fox the adopted daughter of the fourth Lord Holland As to her parentage there were abundant guesses but nobody knew the truth That she was received at the court of Queen Victoria had to be accepted as sufficient proof that there was no stain upon her descent She grew up to be a belle of the season and three or four years ago it was gossipped that she was about to make one of the most brilliant matches in England But the fates willed otherwise The announced groom took to him another wife and in 187[illegible] Miss Fox was married to the German Prince John of Liechtenstein

Liechtenstein is a sovereign principality but the smallest in Europe Its population is about 8 000 its revenues about 60 000 Austrian [illegible] expenditures about [illegible] and there is no public debt so [illegible] according to Mr Micawber's famous expression the principality is about the only [illegible] State in Europe The Prince of Liechtenstein however [illegible] the head of the house of [illegible] perhaps the very oldest sovereign family [illegible] antedating the Romanoffs and [illegible] the Bourbons Hapsburgs and Hohenzollerns We suppose that any scion of [illegible] king or kaiser might with [illegible] intermarry with a scion of the [illegible] Liechtenstein But Prince John has [illegible] string of titles to his name Besides being [illegible] Prince of Liechtenstein he bears [illegible] Troppau and Jagerndorf Count of [illegible] He is, by [illegible] Chancellor of the Empire [illegible] of the Order of the Golden [illegible] Honorary Bailiff of the Order of St John of Jerusalem and independent of his sovereign [illegible] one of the richest nobles [illegible] He has estates in Austria [illegible] and Saxony upon which reside 600 [illegible] and from which he receives [illegible] 1 100 000 florins not far [illegible] Miss Fox [illegible] of Liechtenstein [illegible] the book Holland House before [illegible] and from various other sources have been drawn the materials for this [illegible]

[illegible] Washington [illegible] lady teacher propounded this [illegible] to her class Who betrayed our [illegible] This was too much for the little ones and one after another gave it up The question was repeated when one little seven year old answered "Oh! I know it was Charles A Dana He's a bad man"
